RE: Notice Regarding Use of BRUNTON ARCHITECTS & ENGINEERS REVIT/CAD Files

Brunton Architects & Engineers has agreed to provide _____ with computer aided design (CAD) files. In making use of our CAD files, _____ must be fully aware of the following:

1. While all digital CAD data may appear to be very accurate, the CAD files being transferred for _____ use and have been developed for Brunton Architects & Engineers internal use. If questions arise or discrepancies are noted, please discuss with one of Brunton Architects & Engineers team members regarding its general state and ask specific questions about portions affecting _____s' work.
2. It is of critical importance to realize that Brunton Architects & Engineers current expression of project intent is contained in the paper documentation it produces and issues. The user of Brunton Architects & Engineers' CAD data is to assume, unless specifically directed otherwise, that graphics notations, dimensions, and specifications contained in paper documentation issued by Brunton Architects & Engineers supersede computer data. As CAD file user, _____ is to carefully review all current and subsequent project documentation [paper or computer] to identify inconsistencies and revisions and to make all corrections and revisions to CAD data which affect _____s' work.
3. Translation of CAD data from one computer system to another can and often will result in the loss of key data. The loss can include portions of dimensions and text, the location or appearance of structure of the data [layering and data attributes]. Brunton Architects & Engineers does not guarantee the data we produce will work on any system but we will work with Brunton Architects & Engineers' to the extent practical to assist _____ in making use of the data.
4. Ultimately, in using the CAD data, _____ must bear responsibility for the correctness of all measurements, dimensions, inventories, areas, etc. extracted from these files.

The Brunton Architects & Engineers project team will be pleased to help resolve any coordination issues which are brought to our attention. Please Sign and return a copy of this waiver for our records.
